John Fisher (c. 19 October 1469 – 22 June 1535), was an English Catholic bishop, cardinal, and theologian. Fisher was also an academic, and eventually served as Chancellor of the University of Cambridge. He was canonized a saint by Pope Pius XI. Fisher was executed by order of Henry VIII during the English Reformation for refusing to accept him as the supreme head of the Church of England and for upholding the Catholic Church's doctrine of papal supremacy. John Fisher (1469-1535) went to Cambridge about 1482, and the university soon discovered that he was not only a brilliant scholar but also a man of exceptional administrative ability. The registers of the diocese of Rochester for the years of Fisher's episcopate have been preserved and they confirm the reputation that he left of being a very conscientious pastor of the flock entrusted to his care. He carried out regular visitation of parishes, dealt effectively with cases of simony and heresy, and paid particular attention to the needy and the poor. Fisher was asked to preach and the main thrust of his sermon on this occasion was that the promise of the Spirit of Truth safeguards the universal Church of Christ from false teaching.
