When he lost his fortune in the Dakota Territory in 1886 and needed to make a living to support his family, he did so for the rest of his life by writing.[3] Roosevelt wrote on a wide range of topics and genres, including history (The Naval War of 1812), autobiography, biography (Oliver Cromwell), commentary and editorials (whole series.Â  "Meeting of the Athletic Association". Harvard Advocate (Fall). October 17, 1879. "Letter to the Editor about Chimney Butte Ranch". Forest & Stream. December 11, 1884.Â  "Review of Book Following the Guidon". Harper's Bazaar. August 16, 1890. This book could only have been written by someone with an encyclopedic knowledge of the Roosevelt years and people. Janeway displays an awesome understanding of why FDR was the kind of president he was and how he kept his extraordinary power, up to the end. This is THE indispensable book on Roosevelt. I am sorry it did not come out sooner.
