The term "legislature" is a generic term meaning a body which legislates. The term "Legg" means law and "œlature" the place and etymologically Legislature means a place for law-making. Another term, which is used as a synonym of Legislature, is "Parliament." The first and foremost function of a legislature is to legislate i.e. to make laws. In ancient times, laws used to be either derived from customs, traditions and religious scriptures, or were issued by the kings as their commands. However, in the contemporary era of democracy, legislature is the chief source of law. Messages from the Governor to the Legislature, including proclamations, inaugural addresses, and veto messages.
