Although he used all his brilliance and charm on influential friends in Washington, Congress did not purchase his collection, which he exhibited in the capital in 1838.Â Catlin's most important work, Letters and Notes on the Manners, Customs, and Condition of the North American Indians, which first appeared in London in 1841, has had numerous reprints and subsequent editions. Loyd Haberly, Pursuit of the Horizon (1948), is an interesting biography, and Harold McCracken, George Catlin and the Old Frontier (1959), is scholarly and well illustrated.Â He published books about his work, in particular Notes on the Manners, Customs and Conditions of the North American Indians (1841).
