To be rich in spirit based on our own accomplishments is to bear the weight of our own spiritual growth. In comparison, when we acknowledge our spiritual poverty before God, thereby contributing all that we do and are to his limitless grace, the weight of our spirituality is lifted off and placed squarely on the shoulders of Jesus, where it belongs. When we live in acknowledgement of our immense need for God's help, we place ourselves on the path to abiding. Being poor in spirit opens our eyes to see our true state of helplessness and helps us lean on the ever ready, capable, and available help of our good and faithful Father. May your spiritual poverty lead you to a life filled with the glorious, incomprehensible presence, grace, and love of your Good Shepherd. Start by marking Spiritual Poverty: The Path to True Riches as Want to Read: Want to Read saving! Want to Read. Spiritual books are invariably a hindrance to the path to truth, which is what I hope you are asking about. If you just want to be "spiritual", then by all means keep reading them. But I don't mean to say that you should not be reading them at all. Everything you encounter on the spiritual path is a suggestion. You are the authority that decides whether to accept it or not. Even if a great teacher comes and tells you "Do x!", it is still up to you whether you accept it or not. Don't take anything read as the truth, because even if it is true - your understanding of it may be flawed because it is not your experience. Like a caterpillar asking a butterfly what it is like being a butterfly.
