TAKE DOWN POLICY

If the administrators of Newcastle University Theses Repository are notified of a potential breach of copyright, or receive a complaint indicating a violation of publishers' rules or other relevant concern, the item involved will be removed from the repository as quickly as possible pending further investigation.

Where the grounds for complaint are considered plausible, the material will be permanently withdrawn from the repository. (N.B. This may take some time if it is necessary for Newcastle University to seek legal advice to resolve the complaint.)

DEPOSIT LICENCE

The following licence has been signed by the thesis author for most theses from 2008 onwards:

COVERED WORK

I would like to deposit a print copy of my thesis in Newcastle University library, and an electronic version in the Newcastle University e-Thesis Repository. Research referred to below as "Work" is covered by this agreement and when I deposit my Work, whether personally or through an assistant or other agent, I agree to the following:

NON-EXCLUSIVE RIGHTS

Rights granted to Newcastle University e-Thesis Repository through this agreement are entirely non-exclusive. I am free to publish the Work in its present version or future versions elsewhere. I agree that the repository administrators may, without changing content, translate the Work to any medium or format for the purpose of future preservation and accessibility.

DEPOSIT IN NEWCASTLE UNIVERSITY THESIS REPOSITORY

I understand that the deposited print version shall not be permitted to leave the Library or a Library to which it has been issued on inter-library loan.

I understand that work deposited in Newcastle University e-Thesis Repository will be accessible to a wide variety of people and institutions – including automated agents - via the Internet. An electronic copy of my thesis may also be included in the national British Library database of theses. Removal of the item can be made after discussion with the service administrators.

I understand that once the Work is deposited, metadata for the work will always remain visible, although the author retains the right to update the Work.

I AGREE AS FOLLOWS:

- i. That I am the author or have the authority of the author to make this agreement and to hereby give Newcastle University Library the right to make available the Work in the way described above.
- ii. That the electronic version of the Work is the same as the final, approved print version, including all corrections.
- iii. That I have exercised reasonable care to ensure that the Work is original, and does not to the best of my knowledge break any UK law or infringe any third party's copyright or other Intellectual Property Right.
- iv. Newcastle University Library does not hold any obligation to take legal action on behalf of the Depositor, or other rights holders, in the event of breach of intellectual property rights, or any other right, in the material deposited.

Modern women are no longer ignorant and shy as women had been up to the near past. Now they are considerably brave and have a lot of confidence to accomp. In this way, they contribute to social and national progress. The work and functions of women are greatly important for the family. Properly educated and trained women can be of immense help to their husbands and working members of the family. They can teach, train and bring up their children on the right lines. They can advise their husbands and other members of the family in important property, business, and professional matters. Their role, then, in the family becomes paramountly (supremely) important. We need educated and well-trained women in our villages and small towns. In Greek and Roman times, friendship was thought of as being an essential constituent of both a good society and a good life. It was supposed to nurture wisdom and happiness. Aristotle, a Greek philosopher and scientist, believed that friendship could fall into three categories: it could be based on utility, pleasure or goodness. In its latter state, Aristotle described it as being 'a single soul dwelling in two bodies'. During the time of the Roman Empire, Cicero had his own beliefs on friendship. Friendship between a man and a woman is impossible. It is easier to find a friend in a small town or village than in a big city. Friendship is possible only between people of the same generation and social status. When business relations start, friendship ends. Friends are less -, more likely to -, and easier to break off than - or - relationships. stable, change, romantic, family. May not accept professional advance due to family or romantic partner, but not emotional and social support from the LGBTQ community and insulate them from societal homophobia. Straight people may be reluctant to pursue LGBTQ friendships as a fear of -. being associated with members of a marginalized group. -All friendships are maintained through discussion of thoughts, feelings, and daily life events -Encourage them to talk or share, online or face to face -balance openness in self- disclosure with protection, but with boundaries. Can be healthy as long as they are agreed upon. Friend/ Mike example (figure out). An introduction to Elizabeth Bishop and her influence on modern American poetry. Seamus Heaney has also been a prominent advocate of Bishop's poetry, praising her ultimate fidelity to the demands and promise of the artistic event. [5] Other poets have stressed her fascination with science (Jo Shapcott), her interest in Surrealism (Mark Ford and Jamie McKendrick), and again and again, her sense of being an exile. Whatever one borrowed from the other, their friendship clearly nourished each other's ego, providing Moore with the sense that her poems were still being read by a younger generation, and Bishop with the reassurance that she could actually write. Friendship is a term which is used to denote co-operative and supportive behavior between two or more people. It can be taken to mean a supportive relationship which involves mutual knowledge, esteem, and affection.
